

EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE TRAINING PROGRAM

June 4 & 5, 2007

Emotional Intelligence has been found to be the single greatest contributor to performance and leadership. While IQ and technical skills are obvious requirements for getting the job done, skills in EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE lead to high performance and greater leadership.

Join us for this powerful, interactive two day program on EI360™ Assessment Tool. You will learn how to leverage emotions and make the most of your important business and personal relationships. You will increase your performance and enhance your leadership skills using the powerful EI360 feedback profile.

In this Leadership Program you will learn to:

- Apply the brain science of emotions to improve your performance
- Manage your emotions in challenging situations and relationships
- Create strong connections with key people at work and at home
- Help others manage their emotions through change, conflict and adversity
- Inspire and coach others to higher levels of performance

Defining Emotional Intelligence

Emotional Intelligence is the capacity for effectively recognizing and managing our own emotions and those of others. Emotions have the potential to get in the way of our most important business and personal relationships.

According to John Kotter of Harvard Business School, 'because of the furious pace of change in business today, difficult to manage relationships sabotage more business than anything else. It is not a question of strategy that gets us into trouble; it is a question of emotions'.
